

Abstract

The invention relates to oligoribo- and oligodeoxyribonucleotides which are suitable for treating pathological conditions accompanied by increased cell proliferation. The oligoribo- and oligodeoxyribonucleotides are characterized in that they are able to hybridise with the mRNA which codes for the cell cycle-associated protein Ki-67.